A Study of a Manuscript Copy of Yiqiejingyinyi Held by Kōshōji

LI Naiqi

Abstract: The Yiqiejingyinyi 一切經音義 is the oldest Buddhist dictionary that exists in China. In the Tang Dynasty, Xuanzang 玄奘 brought many Buddhist scriptures from India to China. To translate these Buddhist texts, a “translation place 訳場” was set up in Chang’an 長安, and intellectuals were selected from among the monks, including XuanYing 玄奘. Xuan Ying was conscious of the fact that there are many difficult words in the Buddhist scriptures, and thus composed dictionaries for those texts whilst translating. This dictionary was called Yiqiejingyinyi, which has approximately 400,000 characters in a total of 25 volumes, taken from more than 400 Buddhist scriptures and having more than 8,000 entries.

It was introduced to Japan in the Nara period and was widely transcribed. At present the Yiqiejingyinyi retains only printed editions in China, while in Japan it retains many manuscripts. In addition, the Dunhuang and Turfan manuscripts of this dictionary are preserved in the British Library and the French National Library.

(Received on October 30, 2020)

II Kōshōji 興聖寺 Manuscripts of the Yiqiejingyinyi

Kōshōji Temple is located in Horikawa Dori Teranouchi, Kamigyō Ward, Kyoto City (京都市上京区堀川通寺之内). It is the head Temple of the Kōshōji School of Rinzai 臨濟宗 sect, and it is called Entsuzan 円通山 Kōshōji Temple. It was found in 1603 by Kiinn enni 虚応円耳 (1559-1619). Enni read the Buddhist Canon at Kenin-ji 建仁寺 Temple and was enlightened when he came to the Mahayana Kishin Ron 大乘起信論. Therefore, he could think more deeply about the Buddhist Canon than other people.

A commentary on the Kōshōji Manuscripts by ŌYA Tokuzuyō is included of the Sangai Buppō 『三階仏法』.

此の一切経は平安末、長寛、永万、仁安、嘉応の頃、丹波国桑田郡小川郷石田村西楽寺の為に、書写せられしこと、現存の識語に徴す可きものあれば、斯書も亦同時の書写なる可し。然るに、南山城海住山寺の名ある写経も交り居りて、古経題跋に（卷上、北野興聖寺）「又有大藏経、海住山旧蔵也、有永万長承等款識」とあり。尚後世の補写并に版経を交ゆるを以て考ふるに、西楽寺経に他経を併せて一蔵と為ししものなる可し。

Yiqiejingyinyi of Kōshōji temple is the only complete ancient manuscript in Japan. Its transcription information is as follows:

According to the survey by the author, the each volume of the Yiqiejingyinyi (Kōshōji Manuscripts) is written in a different format (e.g., whether it is with a single line note or a double line note, and the number of words per line). In addition, there are a number of deletions and corrections when comparing it with other manuscripts. In this article, we will take the Yiqiejingyinyi manuscript as an example to analyze the characteristics of the Kōshōji Manuscripts.

III The writing form of Yiqiejingyinyi classical Japanese manuscripts

Ishizuka 石塚・Ikeda 池田 (1991), the writing format of Yiqiejingyinyi classical Japanese manuscripts could be divided into the following types.

| E | E' | F | F' | G |

From A to C, the headwords and the notes are the same size. The note is written in a single line. From D to E', the headwords are written in larger size while the notes in smaller size, double lines. From F to G, the headwords are written in larger size while note are in smaller size, single lines.

IV The writing form of Kōshōji Manuscripts of the Yiqiejingyinyi

Each manuscripts has its unique way of writing. This diversity can be illustrated by the following examples.

『十住毗婆沙論』〈深榛〉：
 仕巾反。《說文》：藁大也。《廣雅》‘木藁生曰榛’是也。

According to the above classification, I investigated all Yiqiejingyinyi classical Japanese manuscripts writing forms. The results of the survey are as follows:

V Systematic classification of Kōshōji Manuscripts

As already discussed in LI (2019) 10 versions of Yiqiejingyinyi manuscripts could be divided into three systems according to the differences of their contents. That is, the Daiji system, the Goryeo system, and the Ishiyamadera system. Therefore, in different systems, the writing format vary accordingly. We just compared the scripts that are available in both systems and the results are as follows:

Table 3

| Volume | Kōshōji Manuscripts | Nanatsudera Manuscripts |
|--------|---------------------|-------------------------|
| 1 | A/B type | A/B type |
| 2 | A/B type | A/B type |
| 3 | A/B type | A/B type |
| 4 | A/B type | A/B type |
| 5 | A/B type | A/B type |
| 6 | A/B type | A/B type |
| 7 | A/B type | A/B type |
| 8 | A/B type | A/B type |
| 9 | A/B type | A/B type |
| 10 | A/B type | A/B type |
| 12 | A/B type | D type |
| 13 | A/B type | A/B type |
| 14 | A/B type | A/B type |
| 15 | A/B type | D type |
| 16 | A/B type | D type |

| 18 | D type | D type |
| 21 | D type | D type |
| 23 | D type | D type |
| 24 | D type | D type |
| 25 | D type | D type |

According to the characteristics of each system, we found that Nanatsudera 七寺 Manuscripts is assembled. In other words, one part of it belongs to the Goryeo system and the other part belongs to the Daiji system. If we compare the contents of Kōshōji Manuscripts with those of the three systems, the results are as follows:

Table 4

| Volume | Kōshōji Manuscripts | Nanatsudera Manuscripts |

| 1 | Goryeo/Nanatsudera | Goryeo/Nanatsudera |

The table below shows the format and content of Kōshōji Manuscripts and Nanatsudera Manuscripts.

| 23 | D | Nanatsudera | D | Daiji |
| 24 | D | Unknown | D | Daiji |
| 25 | D | Goryeo | D | Daiji |

From this table, the following conclusions can be drawn:

1. There is a high degree of similarity in the content and writing format between the Kōshōji Manuscripts and the Nanatsudera Manuscripts
2. In volume 1-7, the format and the system to which the contents belong are identical for the Kōshōji Manuscripts and the Nanatsudera Manuscripts are in the same system.
3. The case is the same as above for volumes 17, 18, 21, and 23-25 of the Kōshōji Manuscripts and the Nanatsudera Manuscripts.
4. At present, there are 21 volumes in Kōshōji Manuscripts, 13 of which are consistent with Nanatsudera Manuscripts in format form and content.
5. Therefore, it can be inferred that Kōshōji Manuscripts, like Nanatsudera Manuscripts, is a combinatorial version. At the same time, it belongs to two different writing systems.
