Good Communication Award

No.51

Technological innovation and
Social Change

Abstract Human being is the main body of sustainable development. The lack of communication, a basic human behavior, will lead to an inadequate development of sustainability. With the advent of Web 2.0, general publics have had new understanding of communication. The share of information, driven from communication, has caused a deeper interpersonal relationship. Nowadays, internet as an emerging communication media has taken up most of people' s life. What could traditional poster do for the sustainable development of communication?

See around! Everyone is making great efforts for sustainability!

You can make a pot of green tea to enjoy the whole afternoon instead of throwing plastic bottles of tea!

Turning lamps to make water for hot and vapour at night

Keeping food supply without negative effect on environment

Study of the University to study sustainability!

It is important to prepare the land for the generation to come! So we must not destroy our current environment!
