

HOKKAIDO UNIVERSITY

Title	Authors
Citation	Journal of the Faculty of Humanities and Human Sciences
Issue Date	2020-03
Doc URL	https://hdl.handle.net/2115/77534
Type	other
File Information	10_Authors.pdf

Authors

Shunichi MIYAJIMA, Ph.D., is Associate Professor of Religious Studies, Graduate School of Letters, Hokkaido University, Japan. His major areas of research include 1) theories and methods in religious studies, 2) history of the comparative study of religion, 3) spirituality and religion, 4) bioethics research including perspectives of death and life studies.

(<http://www.let.hokudai.ac.jp/en/staff/1-3-05>)

(miyajima@let.hokudai.ac.jp)

Kei CHIBA, D.Phil in Philosophy (Oxford University) is a specially appointed Professor in Philosophy and Ethics Department, Graduate School of Letters, Hokkaido University, Japan. He is the author of Aristotle on the Possibility of Metaphysics-Complementary development of Dialectic and Natural Philosophy- pp.443 (Keiso Shobo 2002). Philosophy of Faithfulness — How far Apostle Paul is commensurable-, Vol.I xx+836, Vol.II xvi+520 (Hokkaido University Pub. 2018). ‘Aristotle on Essence and Defining-phrase in his Dialectic, Definition in Greek Philosophy, ed. D. Charles, pp.203-251 (OUP 2010), ‘Aristotle on Heuristic Inquiry and Demonstration of what it is’, The Oxford Handbook of Aristotle, ed. C. Shields pp.171-201 (OUP 2012).

Katsunori TAKASE, PhD, is Associate Professor of Archaeology at Graduate School of Letters, Hokkaido University. His research interest lies in prehistoric resource use and the formation process of the indigenous peoples across the the North Pacific region. Technical specialization in the lithic use-wear analysis and archaeobotanical methods as well as typology have enabled him to address these research topics.

Amanda GOMES is a first year Ph.D. student of Ainu and Indigenous Studies, with the Graduate School of Letters, Hokkaido University, Japan.

Their doctoral research investigates the development of inclusive practices by archaeological specialists in Hokkaido, using critical theory and ethnographic approaches.

They have worked with the Rebus International Field School for 6 years and been awarded the Japanese Government (Monbukagakusho: MEXT) Scholarship for prior research.

(amanda.gomes@gmail.com)

Shiaki KONDO, Ph.D, is Assistant Professor at Center for Ainu and Indigenous Studies, Hokkaido University. His academic interests include human-animal relations, hunting cultures and resource management issues.

He has conducted ethnographic fieldwork among Athabaskan-speaking groups in Interior Alaska and Japanese hunters in Southwestern Japan.

(shiaki.kondo@let.hokudai.ac.jp)

Naiqi LI, PHD, is International Research Fellow, Japan Society for the Promotion of Science.

She specializes on Chinese Buddhism dictionaries, Japanese dictionary in Pre-modern and Old Japanese Manuscripts of Buddhist Scriptures.

(linennki0527@yahoo.co.jp)

Inga BOREIKO, is a graduate student (doctoral course) at the Graduate School of Letters, Hokkaido University, Japan. Her current research considers the relationship between collective memory and landscape, focusing on former coal-mining towns of Hokkaido.
(inga.boreiko@gmail.com)

